

Community facility needs assessed

Representatives of a number of groups and organizations in Elk Point met Thursday night for a two and one half hour workshop aimed at determining the priorities for developing a new community services centre.

Consultant Bart Deeg told the thirty-plus people in attendance that the rather shabby and deteriorating building in which the meeting was held has been identified by Alberta Public Works personnel as 'no longer suitable' for the intensive use it has been given over the last few years, since the former school building became the home of the FCSS office, Lions, Masonic Lodge, Guides and Brownies, TOPS, Parent Nursery and Playschool, as well as housing the Recreation Department, Baptist Church, Further Education and Lakeland College for various lengths of time.

Deeg also noted that the Pioneer Circle Seniors Drop-In Centre is 'not in the best of repair,' and is not adequate for some of the programs and activities that group would like to take part in.

Funds are available to communities throughout Alberta from the Community Facilities Enhancement Program, for the upgrading of community buildings, Deeg said, and to access these funds, a needs assessment study must be undertaken.

Two surveys have made the rounds in Elk Point, the first being a door-to-door survey distributed to one third of the households in Elk Point to obtain input from a cross section of the population, while the other survey was

Crosswalk congestion prompts crackdown

A group of concerned parents and school officials visited Elk Point Town Council on Monday evening to ask for renewed assistance in assuring the safety of students crossing 51 Street between Elk Point Elementary School and F. G. Miller High School during the afternoon dismissal time.

The group asked for the closure of the area between the schools to traffic from 3:05 to 3:20 p.m. on school days. A closure of this type was implemented during the final two months of the 1988-89 school year, when school construction made it necessary for school buses to load on the street, increasing traffic congestion and adding substantially to the number of pedestrians. At that time, traffic was blockaded with barricades put in place for the 15 minute period by the principals of the two schools and one of the bus drivers. Immediate reimplementation of this program, with a more permanent solution, such as traffic lights, for the future, was requested by parents' group spokesperson Judith Bilak.

An earlier problem with vehicles speeding through the area has been largely alleviated by increased RCMP patrols, but the number of vehicles travelling through the area, including some who cruise back and forth repeatedly, has not declined. Councillor Morris Cooper, who lives near the area, noted that he had seen one vehicle pass through the area 11 times during a short period. While these cruisers are not doing anything illegal, their presence contributes to the dismissal time congestion, and is felt to be a potential source of accidents.

Remains identified as Dorey

Skeletal remains located in the rubble of an October 4 house fire southeast of Elk Point have been identified as belonging to the missing Geoffrey Dorey. No cause of death has been established for the 67 year old farmer, who was the subject of an intense search lasting over three weeks.

The death is being treated as suspicious in nature, and RCMP are still very interested in speaking with anyone who may have had contact with Dorey on October 3, the day before his disappearance was reported. Please call the Elk Point RCMP detachment if you have any information in this matter.

Crackdown on cruisers - traffic to be halted

Several years ago, the Elementary School attempted to make the crossings safe by the use of RCMP-trained school patrols, however, this proved ineffective as patrols are no longer allowed to go out into the street to stop traffic. There was also a near-disaster during this time, when children crossing under the patrols' supervision were barely missed by a vehicle which failed to stop. A suggestion that parents could be utilized as crossing guards was vetoed, as Elementary Principal Don Conrad was informed that 'parents have no more right to stop traffic between the schools than they would to stop it outside their homes.'

Last spring, when the problem was at its worst, F. G. Miller High Principal Jim Hawkins undertook an intensive campaign to make his students aware of the problem, and urged students who drive to school to stop contributing to the problem by making unnecessary trips through the area. School Trustee Janice Van Maarion feels that Hawkins 'has done a good job' but 'the kids do have the right to drive on the street.'

Mayor Bruce Kleeberger agreed that Hawkins and Conrad, along with their staff members, have been 'diligent, thorough and reasonable' in their efforts to educate the students in traffic safety. As a parent of three children attending the Elementary School, he agreed that all possible solutions must be explored to ensure the safety of students going to and from school.

Council subsequently agreed to proceed with closing the street for the daily 15 minute period, by means of barricades, until the Christmas break, to gauge the public reaction to, and the effectiveness of, the closure. The matter will be reviewed at the final Council meeting of 1989, and a decision on proceeding with permanent closure will be made at that time.

The new Council also spent a portion of their first meeting deep in discussion of the ongoing water treatment woes. Better water quality has been noted since the Town has been pumping raw water from the North Saskatchewan River, and the new Council was told why this source had been chosen over ground water or area lakes. The Town is still awaiting approval of funding for a study on permanent sources of raw water.

A consultant report on operational problems at the water treatment plant was 'disappointing' to former Utilities Committee chairman Allan Frankiw, who 'expected to see more specifics' regarding the type of coating to be used in the clear well, and the possible cost of the needed repairs, included in the report. Two companies will be coming to visually inspect the clear well this week and to give estimates of the needed repair work.

The Town is presently negotiating on an update of the Community Impact Assessment Study. The Northern Alberta Development Council has committed some funding for this study, but has advised the Town that if an update is not undertaken, they would willingly reallocate the funding toward other NADC efforts.

Land costs for an alternative development site for a proposed fairgrounds will be reported to the Elk Point Agricultural Society before the Town undertakes to rezone the area originally requested by the group. First reading of a rezoning bylaw was delayed until the next meeting of Council.

Workshop explores facility needs

sent to the clubs and user groups in the community. There are at least 30 groups whose needs must be considered in the study, Deeg said, adding that Elk Point has large numbers of both children and senior citizens, all with needs to be met.

Workshop participants broke into groups for round-table discussions of what facilities are required for community use. Long lists of needs were prepared with input from all, with these needs then categorized under such topics as availability, accessibility and pricing. Finally, the priorities were listed, with suitability and functionality ranked as the prime consideration. Availability was the second consideration, followed by quality of structure, pricing and accessibility.

During the second round of discussions, participants explored a variety of solutions, including the use of existing facilities and the employment of a coordinator to match users with available space, as alternatives to the construction of a multipurpose building to fill the community's needs. These solutions were also categorized and prioritized, but these results were tabulated after the workshop and are not yet available.

Get ready for winter

The sparse flakes of wind-whipped snow which fell with October's page of the 1989 calendar remind us that winter is on its way.

Once again, we must prepare for weather we would much rather not face as we go about our daily lives. Warm clothing, skid-proof footwear and snow shovels are on our shopping lists, and our car trunks are checked out for safety equipment such as extra clothing, a blanket, sand or kitty litter for traction, a chocolate bar or two, and a candle to keep us warm in case of emergency.

Mentally preparing for winter is much harder. Here we were, looking forward to a couple more months of fall, so we could catch up on the yard work and finish all the summer projects, and the thermometer had to go and take a dive. We were even thinking about heading out to the lake on the weekend, or taking a long walk through the crunching leaves in the warm sun. Now a warm chair by the fire sounds more enticing.

And as for thinking about Christmas...well...it's not as far off as we had thought. The fact that it's dark when we get home from work each day tells us that the shortest day will be here before we know it.

Hibernation...that's the answer!

Or, maybe not. Just think what we would miss: hockey, bonspiels, figure skating, skiing, snowmen, Christmas shopping, festive get-togethers, the school concerts, church pageants, the Extravaganza, family celebrations around the Christmas tree, New Year's Eve, the Mini Telerama, Valentine's Day...

Nope. We'd better dig out the long woolies and get ready to enjoy winter...even if we do have to retreat to the fireside every now and then for a long winter's nap. And remember, we've got to do this fast-spring is only 142 days away!

Alberta Trails - Part 4

Visit to Kansas

By Irene Magnusson

The last week of our time in Wichita, Kansas, went very fast, with part of it gone already. On one day we went over to the drugstore, where I left my films for processing. Picking them up later, we noticed I had been charged full price, even though a special was offered. Shirley didn't like that, so phoned and protested. They were willing to refund the amount. We went over later to pick it up; I left another two rolls.

Next day, paying for them, I offered a $20, receiving change for a $10, which I didn't notice until later. Again, the phone call. Again, go and pick up the extra $10. The poor girl was flustered, so was I - and I'm sure she was glad to see me leave for Canada. The trouble for me was, all American bills look alike, at least in color.

On the Thursday, Shirley took Virginia and me to the Botanical Gardens, a fairly new project, on the edge of the city. This is several acres of beautifully landscaped grounds, with a stream complete with fountains, a waterfall, and water lilies, gorgeous rose gardens, flowers of all varieties in lush abundance. There was a picnic area, with tables, chairs and umbrellas overhead, where we enjoyed a boxed lunch. Huge spreading shade trees were scattered throughout, while one area was designed to represent an old fashioned English garden of the 17th century.

Along one path, a clump of bright native sunflowers draped themselves against a wall, mingling with some other flowering shrubs, and here we saw dozens of the lovely orange/brown Monarch butterflies the newspapers had been mentioning. These were said to have arrived in the millions, off on their migratory way to Mexico and a winter hibernation. These distinctive butterflies, about the size of our Swallowtails, are very hardy, travelling hundreds of miles summer and fall, from Mexico to southern edges of Canada, producing several broods along the way. They are completely protected, are considered harmless - and very beautiful.

We did laundry, visited and loafed, readying ourselves for the Saturday trip to the city of Lawrence, where Ed and Shirley's daughter, Tracey, is in her fourth year of studies at the University of Kansas situated there.

Leaving about 8 a.m., we drove northward on the Kansas Turnpike to Lawrence (167 miles), arriving after noon. This wide, divided toll road sweeps through some lovely farmland, then through miles of cattle-country, all quite flat, with a few trees here and there. We came to the Flint Hills, where we saw cowboys herding a drove of cattle - perhaps two hundred - through the folding grassy hills. There was a large man-made lake, the water sloshing about amid the branches of the long-dead trees, a few anglers casting from small boats, where here, Eddy said, was to be expected good fishing.

Oil pumps dotted the plains, but mostly much smaller pumps, and much smaller tanks beside them, than those we are used to seeing here in Alberta. We assumed the oil is closer to the surface, so smaller pumps will do. I thought the pumps much more widely spaced than in our oil patches. There were very few dwellings visible along this stretch of road.

Unexpected signs popped up: a large MacDonald's M with a neat eatery between the two roadways; an arrow pointing towards "Ottawa" and a large sign stating that we were crossing the "Historic Sante Fe Trail". We did see quite a few familiar names in Kansas. Wichita sits in the Sedgewick County, Ottawa is a city of some 10-12,000 persons, Toronto is a little community over by a lake. In Kansas are towns with such names as Carbondale, Fairview, Hope, Mission, St. Paul, Vermilion, Victoria, St. John, St. Mary's - sound familiar?

Lawrence, Kan., pop. 52,730, has been built on a series of hills, some of the streets quite steep, and no doubt fun for the thousands of students who reside there and attend the University. We met Tracey, examined the small apartment she shared with three other girls, and walked about the campus for a bit. We also met her fiancé, and had lunch in his apartment, where the two of them will live after they are married at Christmas. Both are majoring in American History.

Later, we drove out to Clinton Lake, with its park, the water dotted with boats, and a tall pier high over the water. Here we were able to examine, close up, a bush I had noticed along our way here and there. A 'hedge-apple', Eddy called it; a shrub about 15 feet tall, with light, bright green leaves, and green 'apples' hanging high. Several fruits hung above us, yes, like apples. But one had fallen, breaking open to show a lumpy, green crust, with a centre like a green pumpkin, full of pith and seeds. Definitely NOT apples! Tracey said they were given to falling on pedestrians' heads, as they were often growing along roadsides and pathways. I am still not sure if they are native or domesticated and planted.

In the afternoon we drove on, another 40 miles or so, to Kansas City - which is a twin-city, either in Kansas or Missouri, depending where you are. We only found one sign to show the demarcation of the two States. They grow along the conjunction of the Kansas River and the Missouri River; a large, beautiful city, lots of trees, tall buildings, parks, statues, and people. We got a motel room, and went to explore.

There was a country-crafts, street-booth sale going on, so we drove about in the less crowded areas, went for supper, and sent the two students back to Lawrence.

In the sun of Sunday morning, we explored the near-empty streets, looked at some fantastic quilts at a 'Quilt Fair' display, went through a museum, had lunch, walked a long over-street tunnel, rode to the 38th floor of a high-rise for photos of the town; a great view. Had I known the Associated Country Women of the World were meeting there, I might have looked for them, but of course, I didn't.

We left early and drove the three hour trip back to Wichita, full of exploring, our cameras almost hot from all the snapping done...yet there were scenes I didn't get and wish I had...like the "Old Chisholm Trail" sign...

Virginia and I promised Shirley we would never tell what a super cook she is - or all would beat a path to her door. So we will keep that to ourselves. Ed and I had a good bit of information to exchange on the Family Tree he is compiling, and we never tired of looking at the lovely furnishings and art works in their home. Having thoroughly enjoyed our days in Kansas, we packed, readying ourselves for the three plane hours of the trip back to Edmonton the next day.

With almost clear sky, we were able to see the terrain, noticing the many round fields below, the many lakes, rivers, mountains and trees, and the huge city area of Dallas-Ft. Worth, then again of Salt Lake City - and finally, Edmonton, and the brief fiddling time of Customs. I was happy to see a few leaves yet on the boughs, that my spuds weren't frozen, and all well at home. It's a trip I'd not mind making again.

Today, as I'm writing this last page, I am listening to the news of the terrible earthquake in California, and especially the San Jose area, where Eddy and Shirley's son, Tony, is taking his final year of Law at the Stanford University there. They had a call from him at 2:00 a.m. this morning - he's okay. San Jose is 50 miles from the epicenter of that awful quake. We have much to be thankful for.

Pesticide Container Collection and Disposal Program

AN INDEPENDENT BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY

At the request of Alberta Environment, The Alberta Special Waste Management Corporation has assumed responsibility for the collection and disposal of agricultural chemical containers, commencing with the 1989 crop year.

ASWMC proposes a comprehensive Pesticide Container Collection and Disposal Program to be undertaken in collaboration with approved private contractor(s).

This will involve the removal of some 500,000 containers from 110 storage sites in Alberta. These containers are made from various materials, including plastic, steel and aluminum.

The program calls for the containers to be collected, shredded, washed, and converted into recyclable raw materials. All residues from the containers and the washing and conversion process must be collected and treated in an approved manner.

The Corporation is also interested in proposals by which the raw materials - shredded plastic, or coined/shredded steel - can be safely reprocessed into viable products.

Interested parties are invited to register their interest with The Alberta Special Waste Management Corporation to receive the "Pre Tender Information Package". The deadline for registration is December 1, 1989.

Ukrainian Dance Club

Plans tea and bake sale

By Margaret Bayduza

The annual Elk Point Ukrainian Dance Club Tea and Bake sale will be held on December 9 from 1:00 to 3:00 p.m.

Pyroghies will be available for sale at this time. We would like to thank all those involved in making the pyroghies for their help - the Babas who always come out to make pyroghies, the Elk Point Golden Loaf Bakery for donating the plastic bags for packing pyroghies, the Elk Point Meat Packers for donating freezer space to freeze the pyroghies after we make them, and the ladies who donate their personal freezer space to store pyroghies for us. We wouldn't be able to do it without the generosity and assistance of all of you.

Our next bingo is on Saturday afternoon, November 4th. The early bird bingos start at 12:30. our bingos are held at Club Bingo in St. Paul.

The Dance Club wishes to make a clarification about the Elk Point mini-Telerama. Although we are happy to be participating in it, we are NOT hosting it. Sponsored by ACT, it is a community effort, and as such needs the support and participation of the whole community to be successful. We're confident that everyone will get involved, and make it a huge success.

Have a great week!
